

CPP 1001_13

Pedro Fernandes

C0676975

Assignment 6 – Volunteer

Volunteering is considered an activity where an individual or group provides services for no financial gain in order to benefit another person, group or organization. Volunteering is one of the most rewarding things you can do, here are some positives sides of it:

- Increase confidence: This type of work helps people gain confidence by giving the chance to do something new and acquire achievements.
- Making the difference: It has a positive and real affect on the community.
- Meet people: It helps you to get to know more people and make new friends.
- Learning skills: It gives you the opportunity to work on something new and increase your skills set.
- Join the community: Inserting people in the community improves everybody else's lives.

I have never had the opportunity to do volunteer work and one of the reasons for that is lack of time. Another reason for that is I do not have enough information and never found a volunteer role which I find interesting to join.